Recovering aged patient balances and stalled insurance receivables for Bloom Behavioral Health — on pure contingency

Prepared for Bloom Behavioral Health · August 2026

Recovery, not billing — the layer that starts where your claim ends

Prepared for Bloom Behavioral Health — a dual-certified psychiatric and family nurse practitioner practice delivering holistic mental health care to Louisiana patients from school age through the golden years, primarily by telehealth with limited in-person days in New Orleans. A practice built for flexibility carries a specific receivable: patient responsibility that accrues quietly across recurring medication-management and psychotherapy visits, and payer balances that stall in follow-up long after the visit was delivered. Southwest Recovery Services is not a billing company and does not replace your revenue-cycle workflow — we are the post-billing recovery layer that works what your process could not close.

Care already delivered is revenue already earned. In behavioral health the balance is rarely large, but it is recurring — a coinsurance amount on every medication-management visit, a deductible that resets each January, a no-show or late-cancellation fee, a self-pay balance from a patient between plans. Individually each is small enough to ignore. Across a growing panel they become the difference between a practice that scales and one that quietly finances its own patients.

Southwest Recovery Services works healthcare receivables on pure contingency since 2004 — under a Business Associate Agreement, with HIPAA and Regulation F training for every account handled, and credit reporting only where lawful. No retainer, no minimum, no recovery, no fee.

Two decades of healthcare recovery — nationwide

A track record built on patient and payer balances, worked under a documented, compliant process — capacity a solo or growing practice can add without hiring for it.

What a practice owner asks us — answered directly

The questions that matter when the receivable is patient responsibility on recurring behavioral-health visits, and the practice owner is also the clinician.

| What does it cost?                                  | Pure contingency — $0 upfront, no retainer, no monthly minimum. You pay a pre-agreed percentage only of what we actually recover. Nothing about placing accounts adds a fixed cost to a practice that is still growing.                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Is this billing, or something else?                 | Something else. We do not code, bill, or submit claims, and we do not replace your revenue-cycle workflow. We are the layer that starts after billing has done its job — aged patient balances, self-pay accounts, and payer receivables that stalled in follow-up. Think of it as the backstop behind your process, not a substitute for it.                                                                          |
| How is patient privacy handled?                     | Every healthcare client is worked under a Business Associate Agreement. Staff carry ongoing HIPAA and Regulation F training, and we operate on the minimum-necessary standard — we work a balance without ever needing a clinical record. For behavioral health specifically, the sensitivity of the underlying care is exactly why the recovery has to be quiet, professional and documented.                         |
| Will this damage the therapeutic relationship?      | That is the right question to ask, and it drives how we work the account. Recovery is firm, professional, and never threatening or misrepresenting — no pressure tactics, no implied consequences that don't exist. A patient who resolves a balance respectfully can and often does stay in care. That protects your panel and your reputation in a community where reputation is the referral engine.                |
| What about Medicaid and Medicare patients?          | Those balances are governed differently, and we work only what is lawfully collectible. Medicaid cost-sharing is limited or prohibited across most eligibility categories, so there is often little to no patient responsibility to pursue. Medicare Part B coinsurance is collectible patient responsibility. We screen the file with you before anything is worked, rather than pursuing balances that shouldn't be. |
| What does placement look like for a small practice? | Low-lift. Upload an aging export through the secure portal — we map your columns, so nothing is re-keyed — and outreach begins within 24 to 48 hours of a documented placement. You log any payment a patient makes directly to the practice so balances stay accurate and no one is over-contacted.                                                                                                                   |

MATTERS

Patient balances are most collectible while care is recent

A patient balance is most collectible while the visit is still recent and the relationship is still warm; every month it ages, contact information goes stale and willingness to resolve drops. For a recurring-visit practice, the highest-leverage change is rarely chasing harder — it is placing sooner.

THE AGE CURVE

Balances placed within 90–120 days of becoming patient responsibility recover materially better than balances that sit a year.

THE STANDING RULE

A fixed placement policy beats case-by-case decisions, and on contingency there is no cost to placing.

Recovery figures vary by portfolio and payer mix; SWRS gives an honest, age-based read on a representative sample before any accounts are worked.

We speak your ledger

A recurring-visit behavioral-health panel spanning Medicaid managed care, Medicare Part B, commercial plans and self-pay has a specific recovery profile. Our playbook is built for it.

Patient responsibility after the claim

Coinsurance, deductibles and self-pay balances that accrue quietly across recurring medication-management and psychotherapy visits.

Insurance follow-up & appeals backstop

Payer balances that stalled in follow-up — worked as the layer behind your billing process, not as a replacement for it.

Sensitivity-first, HIPAA-compliant

Business Associate Agreement, minimum-necessary standard, and ongoing HIPAA and Regulation F training — because behavioral health is the last place for an aggressive collector.

Patients who move or change plans

Skip tracing locates a patient who relocated or changed coverage — so a recoverable balance doesn't become a write-off by default.

Recovery run on an AI-driven platform — Aktos

Every account SWRS works runs on Aktos, a next-generation, AI-driven collections platform — with compliance built into the workflow, not bolted on afterward. It's how a boutique, people-first agency delivers enterprise-grade speed, consistency, and auditability.

AI workflow automation

Repetitive steps are automated and every account is scored and routed by predicted payment likelihood — so the right strategy reaches the right account first, without manual queue-picking.

Omnichannel outreach

Coordinated email, SMS, and voice, timed to when a debtor is most likely to engage — replacing high-friction call blasts with respectful, data-driven contact.

Compliance built in

FDCPA, Reg F, and TCPA guardrails are enforced inside the automation, with phone-number and consent checks before outreach — documented and defensible on every account.

Real-time dashboards

You see status, segmentation, and recovery performance on your portfolio in real time — full transparency, not a monthly PDF.

API-first intake

Secure SFTP/API placement means accounts start working without data lag — roughly 50% faster acknowledgment and validation of new placements.

Data-driven scoring

Dynamic scoring and segmentation predict payment likelihood and concentrate effort where recovery is most achievable — earlier intervention on aged balances and fewer disputes.

The result is the combination clients rarely get from a legacy agency: faster cash and cleaner compliance at the same time. Automation accelerates recovery and standardizes documentation, while empathy-first, data-driven contact protects your brand and keeps disputes and complaints low.

Built by a collector with 30 years on the phones — not a CEO with zero collection experience

Steven Dietz

Founder & Chief Executive Officer

Featured in USA Today, International Business Times & Financial Services Review — Top AR Management Service, 2025 · ACA International member.

Steven Dietz didn't come to collections from the corner office — he came from the phones. He started as a collector and credit analyst before he was 20, was tapped by Aaron's to train collectors across 100+ locations, and has spent nearly 30 years in receivables. Along the way he became convinced the industry's bad reputation was a choice, not a requirement: businesses get paid faster when recovery is built on listening and respect rather than aggressive calls and empty threats.

He founded Southwest Recovery Services in 2004 on that principle — a national, family-owned receivables partner that treats every debtor as a person and every client relationship as worth protecting. Two decades later he still coaches the teams and works accounts personally — an operator who has actually done the job, not a manager who has only overseen it.

Regardless of the means of recovery, our focus is always on preserving goodwill and representing the client professionally.
