Receivables Recovery for Funeral Homes

Recovering unpaid service balances with the patience and dignity your families deserve — on pure contingency

Prepared for Reid's New Golden Gate Funeral Home · August 2026

Caring for a family doesn't end when the service does

To the team at Reid's New Golden Gate Funeral Home — thank you for reaching out about help with funeral home collections. Families come to you on the worst day of their lives, and you take care of them first and talk about money later. That is the right order, and it is why people in Milwaukee and Racine trust you with their mother, their husband, their child. It also leaves your office holding balances that were never really about the money: the family who fully intended to settle once the insurance paid, the estate that took far longer than anyone expected, the son who stopped returning calls because he is ashamed he cannot pay yet. Those accounts rarely need pressure. They need patience, and someone with enough distance from the funeral itself to keep the conversation open without asking your directors to stand between a family and its grief.

Behind every aged balance is a person who is still grieving. That is the whole difficulty. The casket, the vault, the transport, the staff hours and the cemetery fees were paid out of your pocket months ago — and the only way to ask about them is to reach back into the hardest season of someone's life. Your directors carry that weight, families sometimes hear the call as a bill arriving in the middle of mourning, and the balance quietly ages toward a write-off nobody ever decided to take.

Southwest Recovery Services has worked receivables on pure contingency since 2004, and we are a family-owned firm ourselves. We take these accounts slowly, we listen before we ask, and we work with people rather than at them — because a family that is treated with patience usually finds a way to pay, and a family that is treated badly tells the whole neighborhood. You place accounts through a secure portal that takes your export, and we carry the conversation from there. No recovery, no fee.

The questions a funeral director should ask before trusting anyone with these families

Honest answers on cost, on how your families will be spoken to, on insurance assignments and estates, and on what placement actually asks of your staff.

YOUR QUESTION	SOUTHWEST RECOVERY SERVICES
1. What does it cost?	Pure contingency — $0 upfront, no retainer, no monthly minimum. You pay a pre-agreed percentage only of what we actually recover. The rate is quoted once we see a representative sample of your past-due accounts, and it scales with the age, balance and volume you place.
2. How will my families be treated?	This is the question that matters most, and we would rather you judge us on it than on a recovery rate. Every contact begins by listening. If someone is still in the early weeks of loss, or waiting on a policy, or simply not able yet, we slow down and work out a path rather than press. No threats, no misrepresentation, no pressure tactics — ever. FDCPA and Reg F requirements are enforced inside the workflow and every conversation is documented, so that if a family ever calls your office upset, you can see exactly what was said and when. Your name is the one that has to stay good in that neighborhood.
3. Insurance assignments & estates	A family waiting on a life-insurance assignment, a probate estate or a Title 19 determination is not a family refusing to pay, and it would be wrong to treat them alike. We find out where the money actually sits, stay in gentle contact while a legitimate payer is pending, and give people the time that process genuinely takes. Only balances with no payer behind them at all are escalated.
4. What it asks of your staff	Very little, which is the point. Bulk-upload an aging export from your funeral management or accounting system through our portal — we map your columns, so there is no re-keying and no new routine for directors who already have families to serve. Outreach begins within 24–48 hours of a documented placement. We also handle ongoing AR management and insurance follow-up if you would rather balances be looked after long before anyone has to call them past due.

THE SWRS CLIENT PORTALSimple intake and full visibility, on demand

Every placement is managed through our secure portal — built to take your aging export and give a small office live, self-service access throughout recovery.

UPLOAD-AND-GO PLACEMENT

Send an aging export from your funeral management or accounting system — we map your columns, no re-keying.

SECURE FILE EXCHANGE

Send contracts, statements of goods and services, insurance assignments and correspondence safely inside the portal — the documentation that resolves disputes fast.

REAL-TIME REPORTING

Run and export account and recovery reports on demand across both locations — a live dashboard instead of a monthly PDF.

DIRECT-PAYMENT REPORTING

Log payments a family makes directly to your office, so balances stay accurate and no one is contacted about money they already paid.

SWRS Recovery Case Studies

Real placed-versus-recovered results from Southwest Recovery's book of consumer-balance clients — practices and operators who, like a funeral home, bill individuals and families directly for care already given. Anonymized by sector, and shown honestly: some books recover well, some recover far less, and we would rather you see the range than a flattering average.

THE AGE CURVE

Why recently past-due balances recover best

A balance is most collectible while the service is still recent and the contact information is still good. Every month it ages, families move, phone numbers change, estates close and leverage erodes. The highest-leverage change most offices make isn't chasing harder — it's placing sooner.

THE AGE CURVE

Recently past-due accounts often resolve in 30–60 days; balances that sit a year collect a fraction of that.

THE STANDING RULE

A fixed “place at 90 days” policy recovers materially more than letting balances drift toward write-off — and on contingency there's no cost to placing.

Recovery figures vary by portfolio; SWRS gives an honest, age-based read on a representative sample before any accounts are worked.

We know what you are really handing us

A funeral home's receivables are not a ledger. They are families in the middle of the hardest year of their lives, and a name that has to stay good in the neighborhood long after the balance is settled. Everything below is built around that.

Patience is the method

We move at the pace grief actually moves. Contact is gentle, spaced, and always opens with listening — because the name on that account belongs to someone who buried a person they loved, and who still lives in the community you serve.

The difference between waiting and refusing

Before a balance is ever treated as delinquent we establish whether a life-insurance assignment, probate estate or Title 19 determination is quietly working in the background — and if it is, we wait with the family rather than chase them.

Reaching the right person, not just any person

Grieving families move, change numbers and scatter across states. We take the care to reach the person who actually signed the statement of goods and services — so no one else in that family is called about a loss that is still raw.

One relationship, both locations

Milwaukee and Racine accounts worked under one agreement, one portal and one point of contact — a single person who knows your firm, not a queue that treats it as a case number.

Recovery run on an AI-driven platform — Aktos

Every account SWRS works runs on Aktos, a next-generation, AI-driven collections platform — with compliance built into the workflow, not bolted on afterward. It's how a boutique, people-first agency delivers enterprise-grade speed, consistency, and auditability.

AI workflow automation

Repetitive steps are automated and every account is scored and routed by predicted payment likelihood — so the right strategy reaches the right family first, without manual queue-picking.

Omnichannel outreach

Coordinated email, SMS, voice and mailed notices, timed to when a person is most likely to engage — replacing high-friction call blasts with respectful, data-driven contact.

Compliance built in

FDCPA, Reg F and TCPA guardrails are enforced inside the automation, with phone-number and consent checks before outreach — documented and defensible on every account.

Real-time dashboards

You see status, segmentation and recovery performance on your portfolio in real time — full transparency, not a monthly PDF.

API-first intake

Secure SFTP/API placement means accounts start working without data lag — roughly 50% faster acknowledgment and validation of new placements.

Data-driven scoring

Dynamic scoring and segmentation predict payment likelihood and concentrate effort where recovery is most achievable — earlier intervention on the balances most likely to be paid.

The result is the combination clients rarely get from a legacy agency: faster cash and cleaner compliance at the same time. Automation accelerates recovery and standardizes documentation, while empathy-first, data-driven contact protects your brand and keeps disputes and complaints low.

Built by a collector with 30 years on the phones — not a CEO with zero collection experience

Steven Dietz

Founder & Chief Executive Officer

Featured in USA Today, International Business Times & Financial Services Review — Top AR Management Service, 2025 · ACA International member.

Steven Dietz didn't come to collections from the corner office — he came from the phones. He started as a collector and credit analyst before he was 20, was tapped by Aaron's to train collectors across 100+ locations, and has spent nearly 30 years in receivables. Along the way he became convinced the industry's bad reputation was a choice, not a requirement: businesses get paid faster when recovery is built on listening and respect rather than aggressive calls and empty threats.

He founded Southwest Recovery Services in 2004 on that principle — a national, family-owned receivables partner that treats every debtor as a person and every client relationship as worth protecting. Two decades later he still coaches the teams and works accounts personally — an operator who has actually done the job, not a manager who has only overseen it.

Regardless of the means of recovery, our focus is always on preserving goodwill and representing the client professionally.
