Receivables Recovery for Well Drilling & Pump Contractors

Recovering unpaid drilling, pump and water-system invoices from homeowners, builders and farm operations — on pure contingency

Prepared for Hewitt-Messenger Well Drilling & Pump Service · September 2026

A recovery partner for the jobs that got finished and never got paid

To the Hewitt-Messenger office — the hardest dollars a well and pump contractor collects are the ones where the water is already running. The rig has been on site, the casing and pump are in the ground, the crew has been paid, and the customer has what they called you for. From that point on, the only leverage left is persistence.

A past-due invoice isn't a paperwork problem — it's working capital you already spent. Rig hours, casing, a Franklin or Grundfos pump, fuel and payroll all went out the door before the money came back in. Every month a balance sits, contact information goes stale, memories of the job get fuzzier, and the odds of ever seeing it drop.

Southwest Recovery Services is an outsourced receivables recovery partner. We have worked consumer and commercial balances on pure contingency since 2004, from 12 offices across 7 states — Missouri and Texas included, with our headquarters in Addison just north of Dallas — and recovery reach in all 50 states. You place accounts through a secure portal that takes an aging export or a simple spreadsheet, and we work them. No recovery, no fee.

Two decades of receivables recovery — nationwide, with boots in Missouri

A track record built on both trade receivables and high-volume consumer balances, with a documented, auditable process. Scale a family-run contractor can plug into without hiring an office collector.

The questions a family-run contractor actually asks

Starting with the one that matters most in a market where reputation travels faster than an invoice.

YOUR QUESTION	SOUTHWEST RECOVERY SERVICES
1. How our customers get treated	This comes first because it should. You have 356 reviews at 4.5 stars in a market where everybody knows everybody, and one bad phone call costs more than the invoice. Every contact is compliant, documented and recorded — no threats, no misrepresentation. FDCPA, Reg F and TCPA guardrails are enforced inside the workflow, not left to one person's judgment. Most people who owe a well contractor money are not refusing to pay; they are behind, embarrassed, or waiting on something. Treated that way, a large share of them pay.
2. Fee structure	Pure contingency — $0 upfront, no retainer, no monthly minimum, no setup cost. You pay a pre-agreed percentage only of what we actually recover. The rate is set by the age, size and mix of what you place; older and smaller balances carry a higher percentage because they take more work. We quote your rate once we have seen a representative sample of your aging.
3. Dry holes and water-yield disagreements	A dispute pauses recovery, it does not end it. Ozark karst means two wells a hundred feet apart can yield very differently, so “you didn't find enough water” is a predictable objection on a job done correctly. We work it off the paper: the signed work authorization, the drilling log, depth and yield records, the DNR well certification, and the message trail. Where the documentation is clean, the objection usually collapses. Dispute investigation typically adds 30–60 days.
4. Customers who have gone quiet or moved on	The core of what we do. Persistent multi-channel outreach by phone, mail, email and text, plus skip tracing against Experian and Equifax data to locate a homeowner who sold the property, a tenant who left, or a business that closed and reopened under a new name. A third-party demand on our letterhead resolves a meaningful share of accounts that have stopped answering you.
5. Builder, commercial and agricultural accounts	The minority of your file, but the largest single balances. On new construction the general contractor is often paid in full while your invoice waits, so we pursue the operating entity, its successors and its principals. Farm and irrigation balances get worked around the season, not against it. As you open up in the Dallas market, Texas accounts are worked out of our home office.

6. Onboarding and placement

Low-lift. Upload an aging export from QuickBooks, ServiceTitan, Housecall Pro or a plain spreadsheet — we map your columns, so nothing gets re-keyed. Outreach begins within 24–48 hours of a documented placement, with live visibility on every account from there.

THE SWRS CLIENT PORTALPlace a file in minutes, then watch it work

Every placement is managed through our secure portal — built to take the export your accounting software already produces and give your office live, self-service access for the life of the account.

SPREADSHEET-READY PLACEMENT

Upload an aging export from QuickBooks, ServiceTitan, Housecall Pro or a plain CSV — we map your columns, no re-keying.

SECURE DOCUMENT EXCHANGE

Send work authorizations, drilling logs, invoices and statements safely inside the portal — the paperwork that settles a yield dispute fast.

REAL-TIME REPORTING

Run and export account and recovery reports on demand instead of waiting on a monthly statement.

DIRECT-PAYMENT REPORTING

Log payments a customer makes straight to your office, so balances stay accurate and nobody gets contacted twice.

SWRS Recovery Case Studies — Trades and Water Services

Actual placed-versus-recovered results from Southwest Recovery's book, anonymized by sector and sized to what a contractor your size actually places. Because most of what you are carrying is owed by individuals rather than businesses, these are consumer-heavy service books. The spread is real: the top is a file placed promptly with clean paperwork, the bottom an aged one with thin paperwork.

THE AGE CURVE

Why the date you place matters more than the rate you pay

Nothing moves recovery on a service-trade book as much as age. A homeowner who still remembers the crew in the driveway engages very differently from one two years removed from the job, at a new address, with a phone number that no longer works.

WHAT AGE DOES

Balances under roughly 90 days past due often resolve inside 30–60 days. The same invoice at eighteen months collects a fraction of that — the gap between the 59% and 8% cases above is mostly age and documentation, not effort.

THE STANDING RULE

A fixed “anything past 90 days goes out” policy recovers materially more than letting balances drift toward write-off. On pure contingency there is no cost to placing early, so the only thing waiting buys you is a smaller check.

Recovery varies by portfolio. Before any account is worked, SWRS gives you an honest, age-based read on a representative sample of your file — including the parts we think will be hard.

Getting paid for rig time, casing and pumps you have already funded

A well and pump contractor carries an unusual mix of receivables: emergency after-hours calls billed after the fact, staged new-construction work, in-house financed jobs, and farm accounts that pay on a season rather than on terms.

Homeowner balances after the work is done

Compliant, documented consumer recovery on residential drilling, pump replacement and water-treatment invoices — including emergency calls that were authorized verbally at 2 a.m. and billed afterward.

In-house financed and payment-plan accounts

When you extend terms yourself and a plan quietly stops, we restart the conversation and rebuild a realistic schedule instead of writing the balance down.

Builder, GC and commercial receivables

Trade AR on new construction and commercial water systems — skip tracing on the operating entity and its principals, with legal escalation reviewed for accounts that still will not engage.

Agricultural and irrigation accounts

Farm, ranch and irrigation balances worked with the crop and cash cycle in mind, so outreach lands when the operation can actually pay.

Recovery run on an AI-driven platform — Aktos

Every account SWRS works runs on Aktos, a next-generation, AI-driven collections platform — with compliance built into the workflow, not bolted on afterward. It's how a boutique, people-first agency delivers enterprise-grade speed, consistency, and auditability.

AI workflow automation

Repetitive steps are automated and every account is scored and routed by predicted payment likelihood — so the right strategy reaches the right account first, without manual queue-picking.

Omnichannel outreach

Coordinated email, SMS, and voice, timed to when a debtor is most likely to engage — replacing high-friction call blasts with respectful, data-driven contact.

Compliance built in

FDCPA, Reg F, and TCPA guardrails are enforced inside the automation, with phone-number and consent checks before outreach — documented and defensible on every account.

Real-time dashboards

You see status, segmentation, and recovery performance on your portfolio in real time — full transparency, not a monthly PDF.

API-first intake

Secure SFTP/API placement means accounts start working without data lag — roughly 50% faster acknowledgment and validation of new placements.

Data-driven scoring

Dynamic scoring and segmentation predict payment likelihood and concentrate effort where recovery is most achievable — earlier intervention that trims DSO and reduces disputes.

The result is the combination clients rarely get from a legacy agency: faster cash and cleaner compliance at the same time. Automation accelerates recovery and standardizes documentation, while empathy-first, data-driven contact protects your brand and keeps disputes and complaints low.

Built by a collector with 30 years on the phones — not a CEO with zero collection experience

Steven Dietz

Founder & Chief Executive Officer

Featured in USA Today, International Business Times & Financial Services Review — Top AR Management Service, 2025 · ACA International member.

Steven Dietz didn't come to collections from the corner office — he came from the phones. He started as a collector and credit analyst before he was 20, was tapped by Aaron's to train collectors across 100+ locations, and has spent nearly 30 years in receivables. Along the way he became convinced the industry's bad reputation was a choice, not a requirement: businesses get paid faster when recovery is built on listening and respect rather than aggressive calls and empty threats.

He founded Southwest Recovery Services in 2004 on that principle — a national, family-owned receivables partner that treats every debtor as a person and every client relationship as worth protecting. Two decades later he still coaches the teams and works accounts personally — an operator who has actually done the job, not a manager who has only overseen it.

Regardless of the means of recovery, our focus is always on preserving goodwill and representing the client professionally.
